

Local Dad Has Had “Just About Enough of That”

Centerville, Ohio - Sitting in the reclining end-seat of his living room couch, distracted from a football game of no particular interest by his children wrestling on the ground in front of him, local father Jeff Brunzman was reportedly heard to utter he's had "just about enough of that" in what he hoped to be an ominous tone. Sources say he delivered the proclamation without looking away from the Buccaneers/Seahawks game, and fell back into silence immediately afterward.

His children responded by temporarily quieting their screams to equally irritating whispers and wrestling slightly slower than before. Within minutes, however, the wrestling returned to its regular ferocity and decibel level. As of 12:00pm Feb 1st, no further action had been taken, though sources close to Mr. Brunzman claim he's considering a low, menacing groan which would surely put an end to any roughhousing.